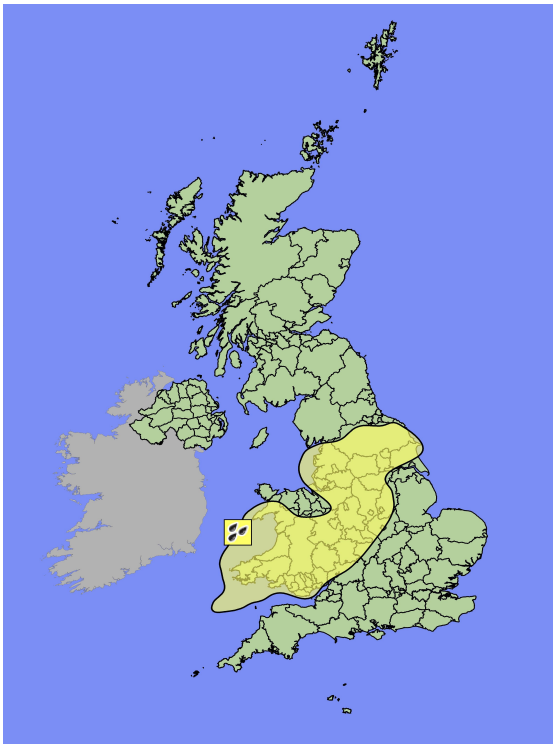
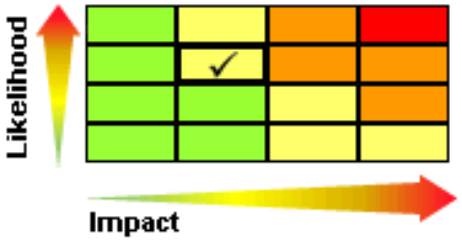
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A band of heavy rain has moved north across much of England and Wales during Thursday night. This will be followed by further bands of rain, heavy at times for western parts of Wales through Friday and more widely across Wales and northern England during Friday night and well into Saturday. Meanwhile. heavy showers and thunderstorms are expected to develop during Friday, with the main area of concern being across northern England, where these are likely to be slow moving with the risk of hail and squally winds.

Locally parts of southern and western Wales and the southern Pennines can expect 50-75 mm of rain during this period, whilst thunderstorms during Friday afternoon and evening could deliver as much as 30 mm within 2 hours in a few places in northern England.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 09:00 on Fri, 15th Jun 2012 until 23:59 on Sat, 16th Jun 2012

Further heavy rain or showers will affect parts of Wales, the Midlands and northern England during Friday and Saturday.

The public should be aware of the risk of localised flooding.
